

Shantelle Browning-Morgan is a secondary school teacher with the Greater Essex County District School Board and has been teaching since 2001. She is a sixth-generation Black Canadian and Underground Railroad descendant. Shantelle is a graduate of the University of Windsor where she obtained an Honours Degree in French Language and Literature, a Bachelor of Education, and a Master of Education with a concentration in Curriculum Development. She has been the Secretary of the Essex County Black Historical Research Society for a number of years, is a co-founder of the Black Staff Equity Alliance, and is active in many community organizations and events. In 2011, Shantelle was a recipient of the Governor General's Award for Excellence in Teaching Canadian History for piloting an innovative African Studies course at Walkerville Collegiate. Additional awards and honours include: the Windsor and District Black Coalition Award, the University of Windsor's Odyssey Award, Professionally Speaking Magazine's Exemplary Teacher, the Sisterhood Award from Women's Enterprise Skills Training of Windsor, and she appeared on Windsor's Black History Month Wall of Fame in 2020. Shantelle was featured in CBC's 2015 edition of Being Black in Canada. In addition to teaching, Shantelle has contributed to the development of the GECDSB's African Canadian Roads to Freedom curriculum support documents, the Chatham Coloured All-Stars K-12 curriculum, and Resistance Along the Fluid Frontier: The Detroit River Project International Freedom Curriculum for the University of Michigan's Wolverine Pathways program. Shantelle is currently a team member on three other Black history-related curriculum projects. She is the mother of three children.